From the Pastor

*Mary punching the Devil, from a 13th century
miniscule manuscript illumination*

Judges 5

³¹ So perish all your enemies, O Lord!

But may your friends be like the sun as it rises in its might.”

And the land had rest forty years.

Luke 1

⁵¹ He has shown strength with his arm;
he has scattered the proud in the imagination of their hearts.

⁵² He has brought down the powerful from their thrones and lifted up the lowly;

⁵³ he has filled the hungry with good things and sent the rich away empty.

One of the things that I skipped in my sermon on Deborah and Jael this past Sunday is the long-term association, in Medieval Christian art in particular, between Jael and Mary. I talked about Deborah the Firebrand being possibly similar to Mary the Tower (Mary Magdalene) but for around a thousand years, Jael was seen as a prefigure of Mary, Jesus’s mother. If this is confusing, think of it as similar to Jesus being seen as a ‘second Adam’ according to Paul, or seeing Jesus as a king from the lineage of David, so that Adam and David in a way prefigure Jesus. This is an old idea in Christianity - that characters in scripture echo one another, or that a type of character arises multiple times. Jael and Mary were seen as sharing a type - the woman who battles evil and triumphs, though in both cases it is by unconventional means.

This connection between Jael and Mary is something I dimly remember learning when studying art history in high school. I find it fascinating because on the surface these are two very different women. We imagine Jael’s bloody hands and compare that to Mary meekly accepting her role as mother of Jesus. In art, Jael is always wielding her tent-peg weaponry, whereas Mary is mostly shining with holy light or holding a cute baby Jesus, or both. The connection, at least in Medieval thought and art, was between Jael’s victory over a tyrant king’s general Sisera, and Mary’s victory over the Devil, a greater tyrant. (This theme was known as tyrannicide in Renaissance Christianity) I see another parallel - between Jael’s act and the Song of Deborah (and Barak singing backup) and Mary’s own song, the Magnificat found in Luke.

There are plenty of examples of artwork depicting Jael killing Sisera - it was a scene that captured the imagination of Medieval and Renaissance artists. It is also a disturbing image to have in the Perspective, so instead I chose another piece of art of Mary punching the Devil in the face from the Middle Ages. There are many examples of this motif, even of Mary as the tyrannicide, embodying her own Magnificat. But suffice to say, Mary does a lot of Devil-punching and Devil-defeating in Medieval European art.

It’s interesting, what we focus on in scripture and what we avoid. Our Hymnal has one hymn based on Mary’s Magnificat, but the text has none of her challenging words in it. Just “sing out, my soul.” No tearing tyrants from their thrones or sending the rich away empty. There are no hymns about Jael, even though one of the oldest songs in all of scripture is a hymn about Jael. Not only is there no hymn about Deborah, there are only two hymns that draw on Judges at all, and neither one is about any of the specific stories. (Both reference Judges 7:18, and in all honesty, I only see the loosest connection with the text)

I am thankful that scripture continues to challenge us now at least as much as it did in Iron Age Palestine or Medieval Europe (though in some different ways). What we think is found in the Bible is always in contention with what is actually in there, whether it's Deborah wielding more power than Southern Baptists (or the majority of other Christians) think women are capable of wielding, or Jael killing a general with a tent peg, or Mary singing about how God will overturn the political and economic order. The Bible remains a dangerous and challenging library of texts, which is one of the many reasons it is worthwhile to continually return to it. If troubled, you may find comfort there. If comfortable, you may find trouble. If you think you know what it contains, you will be surprised every time.

Sincerely,
Pastor Doug

Worship and Music Notes

Welcome to Advent, our time of preparation for the celebration of Christ's birth. The first Sunday of Advent is December 3rd and as is usual for us, we will be celebrating Communion on that Sunday. However, that is not all that will make this service special. Readings from the book of Isaiah and of poetry by our own Jacqui Busch will be framed with choir anthems, and congregational hymns. We will also light the first candle on our Advent wreath. All this entitled "The Desert Shall Rejoice" will make for a most meaningful and festive beginning of Advent.

The second and third Sundays of Advent will continue our Advent journey. Because the fourth Sunday of Advent falls on Christmas Eve, we will be having some special services. On Sunday, December 24 at our 10:30 AM service we will celebrate the fourth Sunday of Advent and Christmas Eve. The Christmas Eve part of our service will include a pageant that you will not want to miss. On that same Sunday, December 24 we will have our traditional candlelight Communion service at 9 PM. This is a very beautiful and meaningful service. Come celebrate Advent and Christmas. See you in church!

Advent Devotional

Make your Advent extra meaningful by following the devotional prepared by the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary. To read the devotional online or to download a copy, please visit PTS.edu/devotional. Copies will be available in the church office.

Sunday School

Regular Sunday School classes continue to meet each week during the worship service, from approximately 10:45 to 11:45. Each week, a note is sent to parents with ideas for following up on the themes and ideas discussed in Sunday School.

On Sunday, October 29, we were visited by friends from the Spanish Health Ministry in Kennett Square, PA. In addition to participating in the worship service and a luncheon afterwards, our Sunday School classes were taught by Dona Sensenig, Tabitha Pfitzenmeyer, and Vida Landis. In addition to discussing the mission and activities of the Spanish Health Ministry and sharing related scripture readings, children learned a song in Spanish (He Decidido Seguir a Cristo or, in English, I Have Decided to Follow Jesus). We very much appreciate the gifts and blessings received from the folks from the Spanish Health Ministry!

In Sunday School, children are designing bulletin covers for each Sunday during Advent. So, during the month of December, be sure to take notice of the diverse and creative interpretations of Advent themes.

During the worship service on Sunday morning, December 24, we will be presenting a Christmas pageant involving all children who are in church that morning. Rehearsals will take place in Sunday School and the pageant will include both speaking and non-speaking parts. Parents, please register your family's availability at <https://app.rally.co/invite/toZylCFvB7Yt>.

Sunday School children and their parents are encouraged to participate in Parish Life's Christmas caroling event on December 10. Kazoos will be provided!

Our 2023-2024 Confirmation Class – for young disciples from Grade 5 and up – continues to meet monthly. The two-hour sessions (which include lunch) occur after the Sunday worship service and include lunch. On those days when Confirmation Class is held, members of the class will attend and participate in the worship service rather than Sunday School. Upcoming Confirmation Classes will be held on December 3 and January 7.

One of the key factors contributing to the success of our Sunday School program is our talented and energetic crew of Sunday School teachers. So, to our fine group of teachers ... thanks again ... and again! And for everyone: Whenever you get a chance, thank a teacher!

If you have any questions about Sunday School – or wish to volunteer * to help out with the program – contact Jeff McLaughlin at fpcchildrenandyouth@gmail.com.

* ... and this includes dads!

Parish Life

Your Parish Life Committee wishes all of our congregants and your families a joyous Christmas and a Happy New Year!

We look forward to sharing these special times with you!

You are invited to join Church Growth in a journey of gratitude. We will be reflecting on weekly prompts throughout the year and building up a regular practice of gratitude in our lives. In November, the theme is “Gratitude in Gifts.” Watch for reminders and examples in the BEAT and on our Facebook page. Here are the prompts for each week ahead of time:

- Dec 3: How do you practice the gifts of the spirit?
- Dec 10: How do you appreciate natural gifts?
- Dec 17: How are you thankful for gifts and talents?
- Dec 24: How will you live out the gift of Jesus?

Minute for Gratitude. If you would like to share your reflection (1-2 minutes) after a specific prompt or something you are grateful for, please let us know, and we can let you share!

Grant Writing:

The Church Growth Committee is reigniting the Grant Writing sub-committee. If you are interested in assisting with grant writing (no experience needed!), we would be grateful for your time! Dan Vissani, Zambia:

- We received an update from Dan Vissani and his work in Zambia. We were lucky to get on his schedule when he visited the US and were able to have an indepth conversation with him, his work in Zambia, and the many questions we had about life.
- Here is an excerpt. You can view the full article on our bulletin board, or online here: <https://drive.google.com/file/d/16e9dOMPU7DspW4AveaDU2jgCHmX673sF/view?usp=sharing>

It was eight whirlwind weeks, but they were worth it! As always, our short furlough was filled with warm reunions, sweet fellowship and times of mutual sharing. The saddest part of our time in the US was that, due to distance or schedules, we didn't get to see all of you. We returned home to a Zambia in its final stretch of dry season. The rains are not far away and yet, as the weather turns hotter each day, they are missed sorely. The compensation for this hot and dusty run-up to the rains is an explosion of new leaves and flowers on every tree. We'll take it!

Drake Williams, Europe:

- This past September, I was in Belgium for mission work. I am pleased with my involvement at ETF-Leuven, Belgium. It is the only Evangelical University offering government accredited bachelor, master, and doctoral degrees on the European continent. I have served as a guest professor since 2014.
- Enrollment has increased by 82 students this year which is wonderful! Many students will go on to serve in Belgium, the Netherlands, Germany, and other ministry assignments in Europe.

Pam Munoz, Guatemala:

- We have received an update from Pam Munoz who serves in Guatemala. Since there is sensitive information, we will not be posting it here, on our website, or on our bulletin board. If you would like to read the update, a copy is in the office and will be there until the New Year.

Personnel Committee

The Personnel committee is interested in receiving feedback from the congregation about our staff's performance. Please feel free to email Jean Osterhoudt (jeanoster@comcast.net) or any committee member with your thoughts. If you would like to voice matters in person, please contact a committee member so time can be scheduled at the next meeting.

Presbyterian Women Circle

All women are invited to attend Circle meeting on the third Sunday each month. We meet in the parlor following worship to watch a video led by the study author and have discussion following the Horizon Study Guide. Please join us as we continue Sacred Encounters - The Power and Presence of Jesus Christ in Luke-Acts. On December 17th, you may skip your lunch bag as lunch will be provided. Please see Jewell Baker for more information.
